Balancing Insanity

Change is inevitable - except from a vending machine.

Organized Chaos

Being a student is chaotic. I mean just trying to make your schedule is enough to drive anyone absolutely nuts. If you are lucky enough to make a schedule that is absolutely perfect and needs no changes, you are lying to yourself because that just doesn't happen. You need to run around getting add/drop slips filled out, signed, and turned into the Registrar's Office. Once classes begin, the chaos continues. You have to attend class on whatever campus your classes are, which means you have to take the bus, which sometimes drives away right as you are walking towards it. Desperate times call for desperate measures. Some students will walk across the bridge to North Campus or even walk all the way to South Campus. Or, if you are lucky, you live in Eames Hall or Smith Hall, which are right on North Campus. And waking up for class is chaotic enough. For us non-morning people, hearing the alarm go off is like "Aww *"! I have slept through my alarms (yes, I have three of them) and yet somehow it STILL happens. And if you are dependent on taking showers in the morning to wake up, finding a shower is not the hard part, it's finding one that has at least lukewarm water. Most students are balancing jobs, in some cases three of them. And oh yeah, we students have, or at least try to have, lives. We like to have fun, hang out with friends, and party like any other college student. Trying to do all three can be exhausting, but we learn to live off 4-7 hours of sleep. Even in all this chaos, students are able to balance their lives – and thus the theme of this year's yearbook is derived as Organized Chaos.

"With these hands we come together
With these hands we can change the world
With these hands I play my music
Sometimes we forget
We ain't much different
We ain't much different
Ain't much different
At all"
~Lynyrd Skynyrd

Moving In

Huge boxes, bags, TVs, VCRs, stereos, refrigerators, microwaves and more lay scattered on the side walks and lawns in front of the dorms. New students wait in lines to sign into their dorms, receive their room key and be escorted up, or down, the flights of stairs in their respective building. Students and parents fight their way through the crowded halls and stairwells with boxes. This is the chaotic scene known as 'moving day'.

There is no contest in what dorm is the more painstaking one to move into, and that would be Fox Hall. UMass Lowell's tallest building, also has the most unreliable elevator transport. If you are lucky to have a roommate from out-of-state you can avoid the lines that proceed out the door. Otherwise, it's you, your 'unlucky accomplice', all your stuff, and fifty other people in front of you. Once students are finally all moved in, they have to begin to sort through all of their boxes to turn the mess in their rooms into a somewhat desirable living arrangement.

For the first day or two, students could be found exploring their dorms, poking their heads into other's rooms, making new friends. When they became brave enough, they'd venture onto different floors to meet more people, especially members of the opposite sex. Then students attend a general assembly in the Cumnock Auditorium as a way to familiarize themselves with the campus. They also had a chance to meet other students, as well as their RAs, in a comfortable environment.

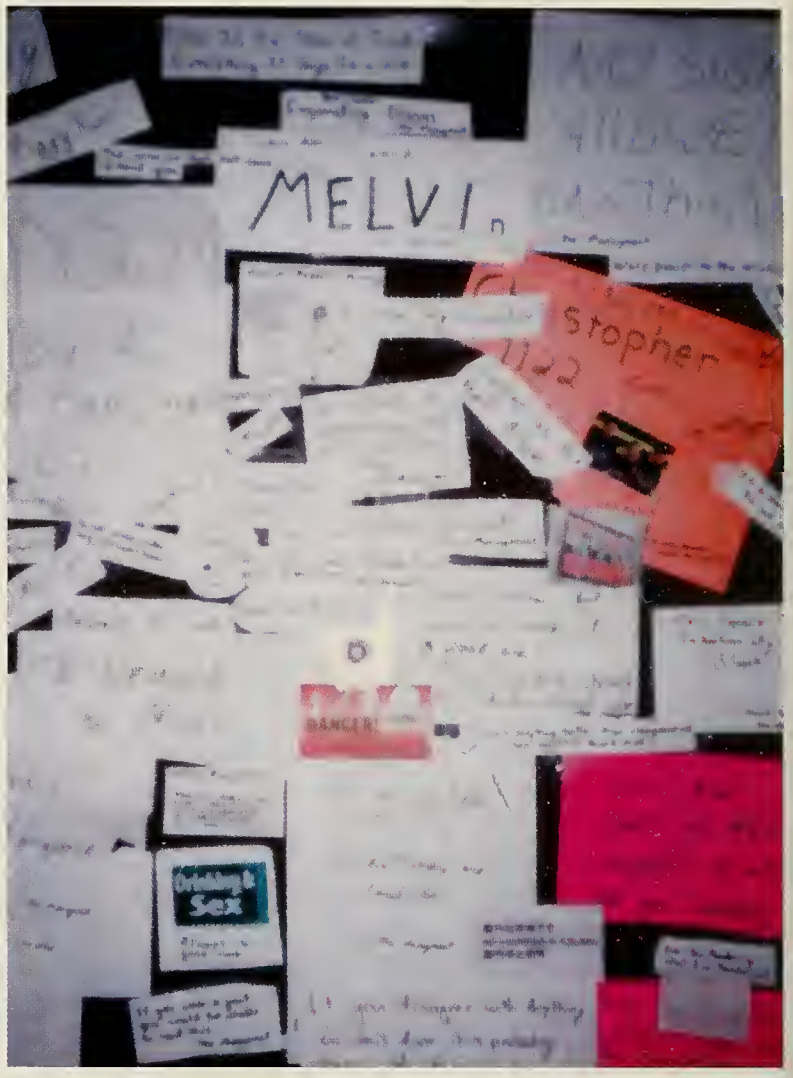
~ Carrie Kidder

Friends help you move. Real friends help you move bodies.

Balancing Insanity

When I was little, my grandfather used to make me stand in a closet for five minutes without moving. He said it was elevator practice.

Balancing Insanity



We owe a lot to our parents, expecially my mother and father.

Rooms

For some students this is their first experience living away from home. Most have shared rooms with siblings since they have been alive and the majority of them are still sharing rooms. There are a lucky few that ended up with a single either because their roommate never showed up, their roommate is never there, their roommate couldn't find a place to park, or they ended up in Concordia. With all this new freedom, students are allowed to decorate their 'sanctuary' with offensive posters, stolen street signs, 'borrowed' restaurant signs, and Christmas lights that are used all year long. It is so exciting being able to decorate your room however you would like, unless of course, you have an outspoken roommate who does not like your choice Bob Marley poster. As exhilarating as it is being able to express yourself, there is no one to clean-up after you, no one to do laundry for you, unless you have a really nice friend or boyfriend, and dust and dirt accumulates on those classy, yet sticky floors. Ultimately it is up to you to clean your and your roommates room. But as I've found, most people really just do not care. And in oversleeping and missing your alarm clocks (and yes I pluralized it for a reason – I, myself have three), things can get pretty ugly and messy in the morning. Either way you have your room, it's still a comforting place to relax, hang out, play guitar, and, oh yeah, occasionally study.

~Bethany Chase

It does not make a difference what temperature a room is. Its always room temperature.

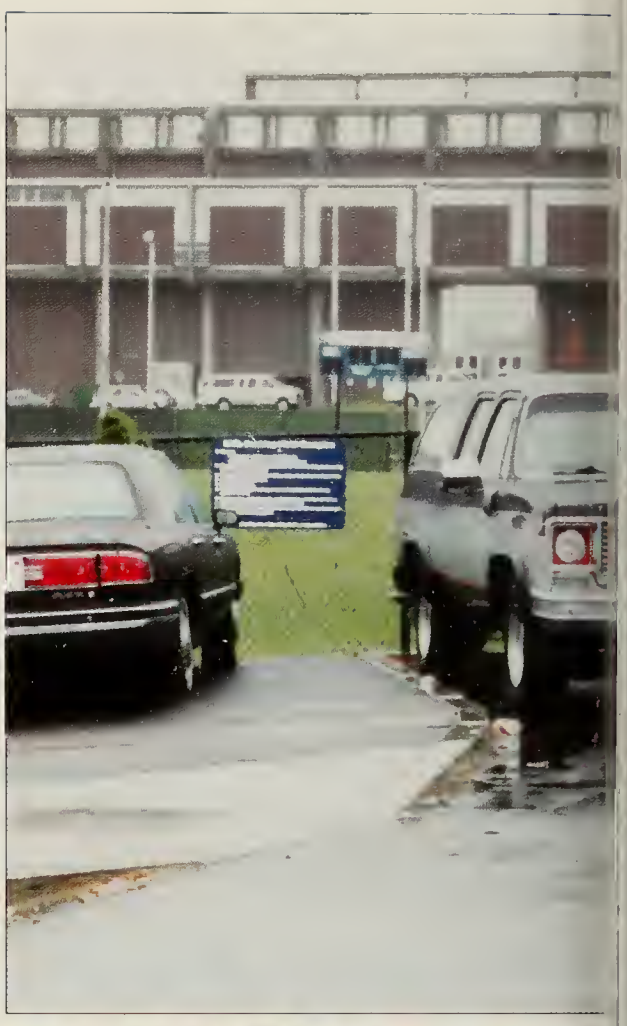
Parking

Parking is definitely an adventure at the UMass Lowell campus. It is probably one of the biggest hardships for all students, residents and commuters alike. Lugging laundry bags that have been brought from home, groceries, and suitcases from the dirt lot can seem like a real pain. It is humorous to see what alternatives residents will take, other than to park in the dirt lot. They will park illegally, park on the street, leave their hazard lights on in some cases for two hours before they go to work in front of Fox, and park sideways on the curb. The creativity continues right into the winter season where spots become scarce. Between North and South Campuses, over one hundred spaces have been lost due to snow, and that is not even counting the residential lots. There have been people who have taken drastic measures in sleeping at home rather than parking in the dirt lot.

On the commuter end of parking, they have it the worst. Although I am not a commuter, I get rides from a friend every morning and have dealt with the commuter lot on North Campus. There are lines leading up to the gate, which unfortunately is never broken like the ones at Residential North Campus. This can make students late to class and cause traffic jams. The extremely narrow aisles are even more frustrating to get by, when another car is making its way down that same exact way. People park so close, you have to get in your car "Dukes of Hazard" style. On a lighter note, watching people make ten point turns to get out of the lot reminds me of that scene in Austin Powers with the go-cart that does the same thing. In this chaotic atmosphere, students are all just trying to gain access to a closer spot to go to class or to reside in their dorm rooms, and one can barely blame their desperate measures.

~ Bethany Chase



People who think they know everything are a great annoyance to those of us who do.

There are two times I feel stress - day and night.

Balancing Insanity

Finals

"It" is endless days of paper writing and studying. All-niters occur often and "it" lasts for a couple of weeks in mid December and mid May. What is this "it"? One word: FINALS. This is a time when students are very stressed. They do not sleep much, sometimes not even at all. Some people who have not slept, take their finals with the aid of Dunkin Donuts, candy, Jolt, and other caffeinated products.

Students have been spotted sitting with their books for hours at a time. Study groups are a fairly common way of preparing for the big exams. Around this time, you can also find many people falling asleep, at all times of the day, and in many random places, even in their much needed review class before the final. It is at this time that naps are a glorious thing. Some also hope for osmosis to kick in, and you can catch them falling asleep on top of their books. I know that I've woken up many a time with imprints of a book on my face that I was reading before I drifted off into deep sleep. It is quite comical to see all these happenings, but if you are a student and have as many classes, as I did last semester (seven in count), it is a stressful time where hopefully all your hardwork and cramming time pays off when you get the alphabet list in the mail.

The rain held off and allowed UML faculty, staff, alumni, students and their families to enjoy the sunny, activity filled day in October 2002. A tradition at UMass Lowell, Family Day is a day where students and family can listen to music, play games, and have fun. Some of the activities included Sand Art, Old Thyme Photos, inflatable slide and moonwalk, pony rides, cookie and pumpkin decorating, blood pressure screening, cartoon Polaroid photos, face painting, pick-a-pop, ring toss game, jewelry and key chain making, along with many information tables. There were performances by the UML Marching Band and Tony Vacca & World Rhythms.

There was also plenty of food out on the South Campus Quad for people to snack on. Choices included: chicken sandwiches, sausage grinders (with or without peppers & onions), pizza, popcorn, nachos, doughnuts, candy apples, cotton candy, pastelitos, flan, and Vietnamese food. The Eames Hall Council stand was displayed with many cookies for children and adults to decorate. "We were up all night making cookies" said the Eames Hall RD, Ramya. Beverages included coffee, water, soda, apple cider, mocktails and smoothies.

This annual event was sponsored in 2002 by the Office of Student Activities, Student Centers and Commuter Services, the Activities Commission, the Resident Hall Association, the Student Government Association and the Office of Residence Life. The day certainly proved to be enjoyable for all who attended!

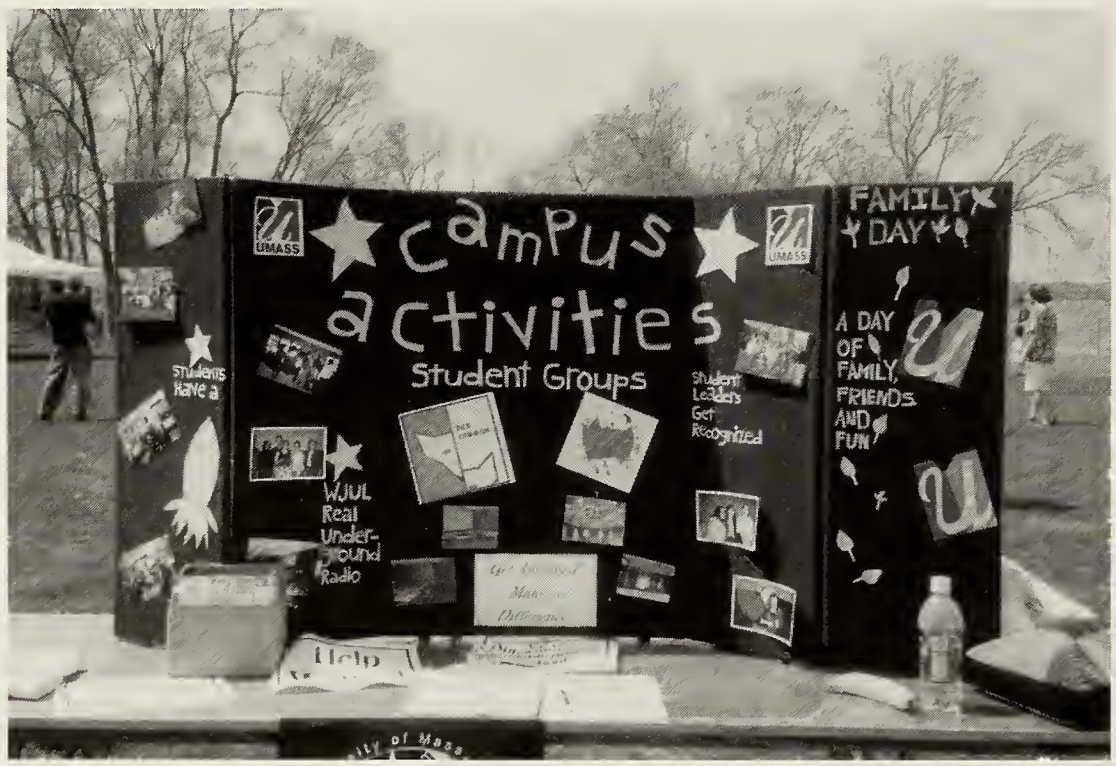
Mutually Exclusive

Nobody gets out of the Bermuda Triangle. Not even for lunch.

Mutually Exclusive

The Clubs In Action section is a compilation of Family Day, Club Fair and Student Activities Banquet photos that we had in the Sojourn office. Clubs included on these pages reflected the religious, cultural, academic and athletic natures of our diverse campus. We don't have a formal club section, but felt it was necessary to include club photos as the clubs and organizations are an integral part of campus life. Without the multitude of organizations involved at UMass Lowell, life would be dull. Thankfully our student leaders feel an obligation to their fellow students to not only represent most, if not all of the campus interests, but to also keep the university intersting and full of color.



The Family Day, Club Fair and Student Activities Banquet represented the very best of what the university had to offer to its fellow students. The smiling faces were genuine, and the fun was real. We can only hope that our graduates will continue to come back and participate in the campus life that they helped create.

September 11th Rememberance

The day of remembrance started Wednesday morning as over 100 students, faculty, and staff gathered around the South Campus Gazebo to hear Provost Robert Wagner's address, which was followed by a long moment of silence. For much of the day, 2x3 foot cards were displayed on tables under the Gazebo. The cards were red, white or blue and adorned with glitter American flags and the photo of a deceased member of the UMass Lowell community who was lost in the tragedy. Many community members signed these cards, which were later given to the families of the victims through the Office of Alumni Affairs. A book of reflection was also set aside under the Gazebo for people to write down their thoughts.

Later on in the evening, over 300 people gathered back at the South Campus Quad where the crowd listened to several speeches presented by Tony Puopolo, Hany Idreis, Protestant Minister Imogene Stulken, Brother Ken Apuzzo, and Sarah Hodgdon. Poetry was also read and music was provided by the University Chamber Singers, who sang "Lux Eterna" and the Marching Band played "America the Beautiful." After all the presentations were over, the University Police escorted the group of people to Fox Hall. As faculty, staff and students entered the Fox MPR, a slide show, compiled by Steve Fiola, of photos and diagrams from one year ago was playing. Also, four large red, white, and blue pillar candles were lit; each candle represented one of the four planes that went down. Fiola was the first to speak and told his personal story. As a member of the Army National Guard, as a band member and a military policeman, he was put on alert. After Fiola's speech, there was a moment of silence followed by the playing of "Taps" by Nick Martino and Michael Reed of the UMass Lowell Marching Band.

The club fair was held on September 17 and 18th on North and South Campus. A variety of different clubs were represented including academic, religious, culturally, and althetic affiliated clubs. Academically related clubs that attended included the Psychology Club and representatives from various engineering clubs. Religious related clubs that attended included The Catholic Center, Abundant Life Christian Fellowship, and the Campus Ministry Association. Culturally affiliated clubs included the Association of Students of African Origin (ASAO), ISASA, and Spectrum. The main purpose of this fair was to educate the students in all aspects of student life. Clubs on campus are meant to include others so that they can feel like they are truly a part of campus, belonging to a club that interests them and connects them to the rest of the student body.

Leadership Dinner

The first of many leadership dinners for the 2002-2003 school year was held on October 8th in the Fox Hall MPR. The Leadership Advisory Council along with the Student Activities Office co-sponsored these dinners to gather a variety of student leaders in the same room to enjoy dinner together and share ideas. Any club member is invited to attend. The purpose of these dinners is to give student leaders the opportunity to discuss current issues on campus. Students share advice while encouraging a sense of community among the students who volunteer their time to improve student life at UML.

The second leadership dinner was held on December 12th in the Fox Hall MPR as well, but this dinner had a more distinct purpose. Dean Larry Siegel spoke about exciting news that Chancellor Hogan has committed to increasing resources for student life and activities next year. Also, he addressed the need for the development of a leadership model that will be utilized with the increased funding. After dinner, a brainstorming session took place in which many ideas were generated. For instance, how to promote leadership on campus and build upon the already established leadership programs.

Family Day

The rain held off and allowed UML faculty, staff, alumni, students and their families to enjoy the sunny, activity-filled day in October 2002. A tradition at UMass Lowell, Family Day is where students and family can listen to music, play games, and have fun. Some of the activities included Sand Art, Old Thyme Photos, an inflatable slide and moonwalk, pony rides, cookie and pumpkin decorating, blood pressure screening, cartoon Polaroid photos, face painting, pick-a-pop, ring toss game, jewelry and key chain making, along with many information tables. There were performances by the UML Marching Band and Tony Vacca & World Rhythms.

There was also plenty of food out on the South Campus Quad for people to snack on. Choices included: chicken sandwiches, sausage grinders (with or without peppers & onions), pizza, popcorn, nachos, doughnuts, candy apples, cotton candy, pastelitos, flan, and Vietnamese food. The Eames Hall Council stand was displayed with many cookies for children and adults to decorate. "We were up all night making cookies" said the Eames Hall RD, Ramya Kumar. Beverages included coffee, water, soda, apple cider, mocktails and smoothies.

This annual event was sponsored in 2002 by the Office of Student Activities, Student Centers and Commuter Services, the Activities Commission, the Residence Hall Association, the Student Government Association and the Office of Residence Life. The day certainly proved to be enjoyable for all who attended!

Jennifer's Run

The Third Annual Jennifer's Run Memorial Run/Walk was held October 12th at the U Mass Lowell's Costello Gym. The Jennifer D'Amour Memorial Scholarship is dedicated to the memory of Jennifer D'Amour, Class of 1998, who died in an automobile accident in May 1999. This untimely accident came when Jennifer was attending graduate school and was one semester short of receiving her master's degree in Elementary Education. An honor roll student for four years, Jennifer was involved in Student Activities, as well as a member of the Cross-Country and Track and Field teams.

It was a clear day and the turnout this year was as impressive as the prior year's. Students, alumni, faculty, and even parents with carriages took part in this event, as children and other cheered them on. The 3.1 mile journey was as gratifying for the onlookers as the participants. To reward their hard work, the participants were provided with refreshments generously given by Mann Orchards.

All proceeds from the race will benefit the Jennifer D'Amour Foundation, which offers educational grants for underprivileged children, grades K-8, in the Merrimack Valley area and funds a woman's cross-country and track and field scholarship. This scholarship is given to U Mass Lowell where Jennifer enjoyed being a part of the cross-country and track team. Judging on the attendance of this year's event, the tradition continues, and Jennifer D'Amour's memory will live on for years to come.

Off Broadway "Dracula"

The UMass Lowell Off-Broadway Players opened their season on October 24, 2002 with their highly anticipated and extremely well received rendition of the Bram Stroker classic, Dracula. My first reaction as I stepped into Mahoney Auditorium that night was being dazzled by the set that stood on stage. Even by professional standards the set was well thought-out, meticulously built, and even contained a couple of surprises that no one could see coming.

The combination of the colors of the costumes, the colors of the set, as well as the chosen lighting gave an eerily somber feel to the entire performance. While the dominant colors of the set and costumes were black and white as a homage to classic horror films, a directorial decision to add a touch of red here and there to certain characters' costumes told of a sinister foreshadowing. Lighting was simple, but as the desired intention of this production was to focus on the wonderful story, elaborate lighting was inappropriate. The actor's blocking as well as the fluidity with which they made their entrances and exits also deserves a mention. Some comic relief came in the form of an inebriated

The cast and technical crew of the Off-Broadway Players is to be applauded, for bringing a work like Dracula to the stage in the 21st century is no small task. A show

Leadership Retreat

The Leadership Advisory Council and the Office of Student Activities jointly sponsored the fourth UMass Lowell Leadership retreat that was held at Camp Bourndale on October 26th and 27th 2002. It was titled "Survivor: UML Style" and consisted of events including team builders, roundtable discussions, and various student directed sessions.

Some examples of the sessions that took place were "Fight or Flight" presented by Christyn Toomey which provided tools essential for stress and time management. Rob Velella presented "Building your Tribe" which was a session on how to build up an organization followed by strategies to keep people involved. Danielle Cochrane and James Gleason presented "Getting Voted off the Island", and it was advice for students looking to find internships or a job post graduation. It also included tips for improving your resume and an opportunity to talk to an alumna, who recently graduated and currently has a full-time job.

This event's purpose is to bring various leaders and students from clubs on campus together. They spent two days devoted to sharing ideas and interacting with each other to develop campus activities, as well as learn how to strengthen their own skills to bring back to the clubs they're involved in. The idea and implementation of Winterfest Week, which took place in December 2002, got its start during the retreat. It was a collaboration of various clubs and organizations on campus, putting their events together to provide a whole week of on-campus programs.

Furniture Expo

As much as everyone loves creaky beds, chipped desks displaying students' initials, and cramped closet spaces. It is time for a change in furniture and UMass Lowell held a furniture expo in Cumnock Hall on November 5th and 6th. Students, Resident Advisors, and members of the faculty examined the furniture more closely. Up close and personal, John Harrison, SGA President, reportedly took the drawers out of most desks and pounded on them to make sure they were durable. Most bed sets featured bunk beds with desks underneath. Not only were the sets made out of wood but metal as well, giving it the modern look. There was even a chance for students to enter raffles and win prizes. These prizes ranged from gift certificates from FYE and even a type of desk chair that may be featured in the winning bed set. This step is one in a cluster of successful attempts to revise campus. From the recreation center to new furniture in Bourgeois and Leitch dorms, UMass Lowell is on its way to achieving excellence.

U Mass Lowell is one of approximately 300 college and universities that competed in the College Bowl Program this year. The College Bowl is known as the "Varsity Sport of the Mind." The program is in its 27th year and is based on the popular radio and television shows of the 1950s, 60s & 70s. Staying true to their predecessors, the two teams made up of four members each, score points by answering toss-up and bonus questions. Questions are made up of categories spanning from history to pop culture. The College Bowl is organized by the cooperation of the Association of College Unions - International (ACU-I), while both the Honors Programs and Student Activities run the UML Campus Tournament.

The College Bowl has been an annual event on the UML campus for the past twelve years. Seven teams competed in this year's tournament and from these teams, five all stars were chosen to represent UMass Lowell in the Regional Tournament. The all stars this year were: Charles Guthy (captain), a junior Electrical Engineering major, Laurie MacMunn, a senior Civil Engineering major, Charles Greene III, a senior Computer Science major, Patrick Joyce, a junior Mathematics major, and Sarah Fischer, a sophomore Chemistry major. This year's campus tournament was held on November 18, 2002 in the Fox MPR to determine the Varsity Team. Varsity Team will travel to the Regional Championship Tournament, and then to Nationals. "Much Ado About Nothing"

Quiet Revolution

Some days you are the pigeon, other days you are the statue.

Off Broadway Players

Myth vs Reality

Glittering costumes, vivacious smiles, and dynamic sets all were possible with the deeply involved practices that made up this production at UMass Lowell. This Shakespearean play which was performed by the UMass Lowell Off Broadway Players had four showings on December 5,6,7, & 8th of 2002.

Much Ado About Nothing was written in 1598 by William Shakespeare. This would make Much Ado one of Shakespeare's later comedies. Unlike his earliest comedic works, the humor of Much Ado About Nothing does not depend upon funny situations, which was clearly depicted in the play. The comedy of Much Ado derives from the characters themselves and the manners of the highly-mannered society in which they live. For those not familiar with the story, the main plot revolves around obstacles to the union of two young lovers (Claudio and Hero), the plays sub-plot, the "merry war" of the sexes between Beatrice and Benedick, is much more interesting and entertaining by comparison. Beatrice and Benedick display a carefully matched intelligence, humor, and humanity that is unmatched among the couples who people Shakespeare's comedies.

A noteworthy performance included Patrick Kenneally, the President of the Off Broadway Playters, who portrayed Leonato, the wealthy governor of Messina – where the story unfolds. Once again, the Off Broadway Players have delivered a successful show!

RHA Semi Formal

As snow fell outside, UMass Lowell students were in a festive mood on December 5th at the Residence Hall Association Winter Ball, that was held at the Crestview in Woburn, Mass. The dance was a semi-formal, and the ladies in their gorgeous gowns and the men in their tuxedos looked spectacular. The dance floor was crowded all night long, as people danced and even proceeded into a conga line. The Winter Ball definitely put everyone into the Christmas spirit.

The white lights, red bows, and tinsel on the Christmas tree added to the glimmering evening, which was catered with delicious appetizers and a buffet dinner. With finals about to begin, the Winter Ball was a welcome night of relaxation and fun.

UMass Lowell students learned who is who on Sunday April 13. The awards ceremony for "Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities and Colleges" was presented in Alumni Hall on North Campus and was opened up by Student Government President John Harrison. SGA sponsored the presentation.

Dean Larry Siegel, Dean of Student Life, gave the opening address, by saying it was nice to see the students grow from being freshman to where they are now.

The awards were presented by Mary Connelly, Director of Student Activities, presented the awards and listed some of the ways in which various students had contributed to the university.

The students who received the awards were: Stephen Athanas, Meaghan Berry, Erica Clark, Danielle Cochrane, Stephen Fiola, John Harrison, Kate Jansons, Rosie Lankowski, Dustin MacIver, Erica-Leigh McNamara, Pascha McTyson, Nihal Patel, Sunal Sampat, Cathleen Spadea, Yunieska Trujillo, Bryan Wint, and Rosalind Wyman.

The award that was given to the seventeen students who received the award said it was in "recognition of outstanding merit and accomplishment as a student." The criteria for the award included community service, involvement with the University, and a minimum GPA of 2.5. Students who wished to enter for an award were required to fill out an application that was made available earlier in the semester. Some students were also be nominated by professors and peers. The application had to be accompanied by an essay and several questions had to be answered.

Dustin MacIver, a senior who was one of the winners, said he applied for the award "to see if my past accomplishments would be recognized." MacIver, who is a Resident Advisor for Sheehy Hall, said he was urged to apply for Who's Who by his fellow Resident Life staff members. MacIver commented that his award represents "a culmination of hard work" and "a good representation of my past four years." MacIver is graduating this spring and is happy to take a Who's Who award with him.

Rosalind Wyman, a senior who also won a Who's Who award for the second year in a row, said, "I'm really glad I got it because it was more competitive than in previous years." Wyman is President of Concordia Hall Council, Head of Training for EMS, a member of the Leadership Advisory Council, a member of Spectrum, and a freshman orientation leader.

Names of the students that gain a Who's Who Among American Colleges and Universities award go into the Who's Who book that is published every year.

Live Music on Campus

UMass Lowell is a special campus when it comes to its live music. No other school has the diversity and quantity of bands that we have.

The Fox Common's live music nights started in 2000, spearheaded by Will Brierly, who graduated in 2003. Over ten local bands paid tribute to Will at the end of the semester by playing through his album 'Fishhooks Hung From Trees', which he wrote and recorded during his time at UMass Lowell. The Common also hosted 26 weeks of Thursday night rock music and Tuesday night

2003 also was marked with the opening of the Visual and Performing Arts Center, which was located on the third floor of Fox Hall, where an old drama stage used to stand. The VPAC opened its doors with a split night of a cappella and stand up. The VPAC also hosted bands and movies as well.

As a tradition, Southfest was in the South Quad with bands like Brie Sullivan and the 50 Ways, Will Brierly and the Roller Holsters, No One's Kind, Harris and Amateur. This was the fifth Southfest, and this year it was run by me, Robert Blatt in conjunction with the Connector.

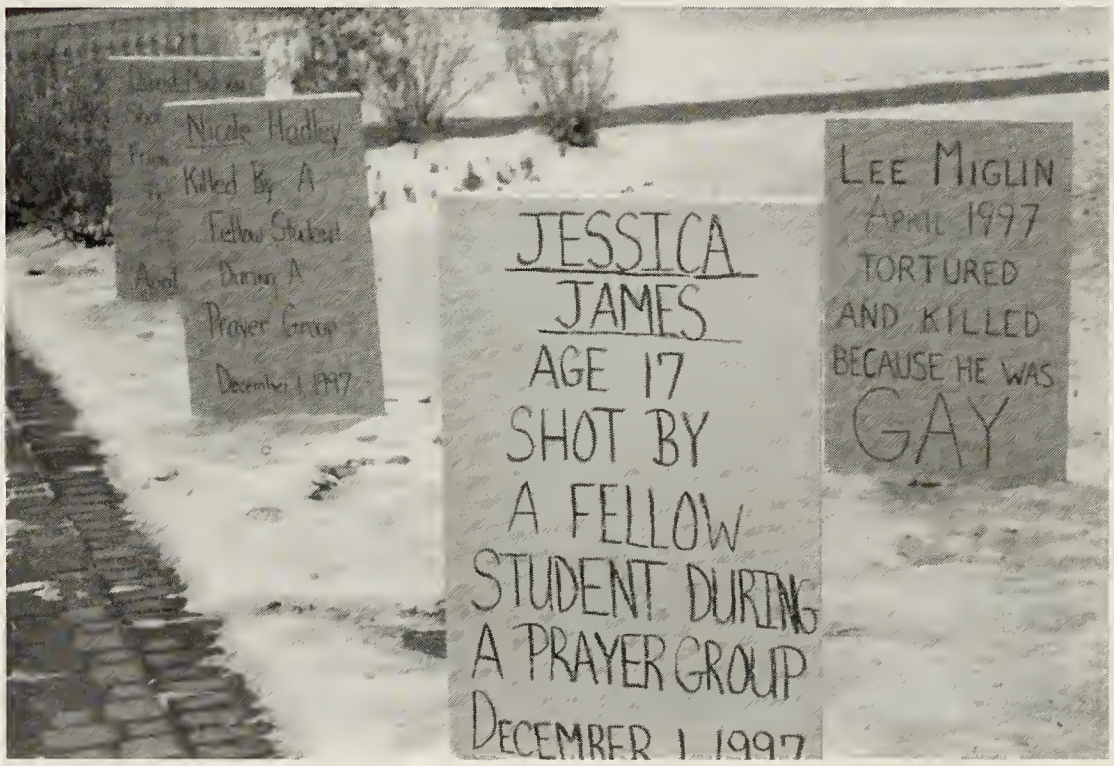
Fear No People Week

Fear No People week ran from Monday, April 2 to Friday, April 6 and emphasized the importance of cultural differences.

In addition to this week, students held the eighth annual "Day Without Violence" in memory of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. on Thursday, April 3. During this time UMass Lowell students encouraged one another to celebrate their diversity and learn more about their differences. Many organizations held events on campus to honor the week and help break down cultural barriers.



One of the most prominent tributes to the week was a series of gravestones set up in the South Campus quad. Walking through the courtyard, students were exposed to many familiar, and some new, names of people killed in hate crimes. The gravestones depicted Matthew Shepard, Mark Daniel Holmes, Jack Gather, and even the victims of September 11th, amongst many others.

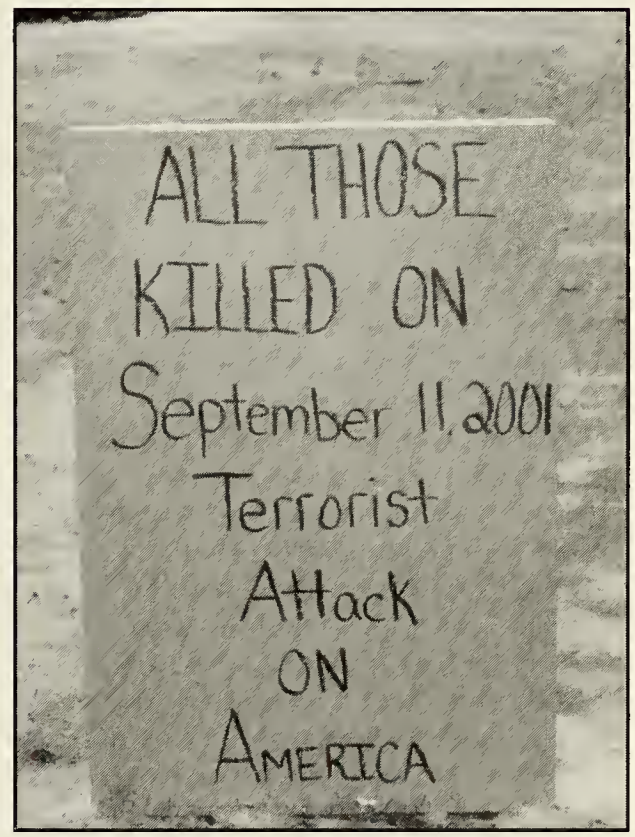
Christyn Toomey of Spectrum, UML's student sexual orientation organization, said that they "placed the stones to raise awareness for Fear no People week. The names on the gravestones represented people who died for what we see as no reason." The stones sent a powerful message to students walking by, and helped to remind UML that hate crimes affect everyone.

Another important event of the week was Culturalfest, which took place on April 3, from 7pm to 9pm. ALANA, UML's African, Latin, Asian, and Native American organization hosted the event in the Cumnock Hall Auditorium. Culturalfest offered a chance to sample different cuisines from all over the world and experience performances by various groups. The Angkor Dance Troupe and the Baye Fall Times gave attendees a unique taste of live culture. Admission was free and ALANA was very pleased with the results of the event.



April 4 was the 33rd anniversary of the death of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. In response to this event, many universities held a day without violence. UMass Lowell's Day Without Violence took place on Thursday, April 3. The PACSI (Peace and Conflict Studies Institute) of UML hosted an open campus conversation in the McGauvran Student Center from 9:30 to 10:45 a.m. to discuss the war in Iraq. The attendees talked about the war in a democratic manner and avoided getting into any debates. The Day without Violence conversation remained peaceable and touched on many of the concepts of Fear No People week.

UMass Lowell is a university rich with cultural diversity. Fear No People week was held to remind students that these differences make everyone unique. Many of the events during the week focused around uniqueness and sought to remind people what can happen when cultures do not understand one another. In the future, UML will continue to hold Fear No People week, and hopes that the lessons learned will be remembered throughout the year.

Dave Chappelle

Starring roles in "Robin Hood: Men in Tights," "Half Baked," "The Nutty Professor," his own television show on Comedy Central, and now; performing at Cumnock Hall.

Dave Chapelle's career started with his role of Ahchoo in Mel Brooks' "Robin Hood: Men In Tights" in 1994. The fresh-faced actor/comedian went on to have a part on specials on HBO, "The Apollo Theater Hall of Fame," "Comic Relief VIII," and a cameo on episodes of Tim Allen's sitcom "Home Improvement," and Gary Shandling's "The Larry Sanders Show," not to also mention his own hour-long special on HBO.

His movie career spans movies like "The Nutty Professor," where he is opposite Eddie Murphy's character, "Con Air;" he was the convict that got thrown from the plane, remember? And he was also a cockroach in the MTV film, "Joe's Apartment." Nothing however, will be remembered by college students as much as "half Baked," which he also wrote with Neal Brennan.

"Half Baked" propelled him to movie star status. He followed that with the films "200 Cigarettes," "Blue Streak" with Martin Lawrence, "Screwed," and "Undercover Brother." He also had an appearance in "You've Got Mail," but we won't hold that against him.

On Comedy Central, which airs his show, he also landed a part on the hysterically funny "Crank Yankers," a prank phone call show. Alongside other comedians like Dennis Leary, Sarah Silverman, Steven Colbert, Dave Attel, Wanda Sykes, Jimmy Kimmel and many others, Chapelle has helped Comedy Centrals influx of new shows. "The Chapelle Show," which Chapelle also writes and produces, airs on Wednesdays on Comedy Central, and is a skit show all based on the comedian's humor.

Highlighted by music by Jurassic 5 and local act Failed Silence, University Day and the Spring Carnival came back to South Campus. The campus' clubs and organizations came out on the (luckily) sunny day to celebrate the warmer weather and to take a mental break from classes and exams.

Popular booths included the Connector's dunk-tank, WJUL's live broadcast, the corn dogs, amongst the close to fifty booths. It could also have been 25 booths, we don't know. We don't really remember too well, and neither do you, you drunk.

Favorite Ice Cream Flavor: Coffee
Memorable UML Moment: Staying up on leadership retreat...A blast in cabin #8
Favorite Class at UML: Politics and Music was the best. In one field trip I got to meet, Former Governor Michael Dukakis, President Bulger, and Speaker of the House Tom Finneran.
If you could meet anyone, from any time, who would it be?: Any one of my grandparents that passed away when I was young or before I was born. There's so much I would ask them.
Thank you's and shout-out's: Without the help and guidance of my parents I wouldn't be where I am today. Thank you for always believing in me and encouraging me to do my best. I share everything I accomplish in life with you. I hope I've made you proud.

To Rob, Meghan and Pascha, thank you. I couldn't have asked for a better group of talented, committed, student leaders to work with.

Over my 4 years I've made friendships with many students that have not only helped me personally, but challenged me to become involved in what this school had to offer. May we stay close, and thank you for making my years here at UML the best of my life.

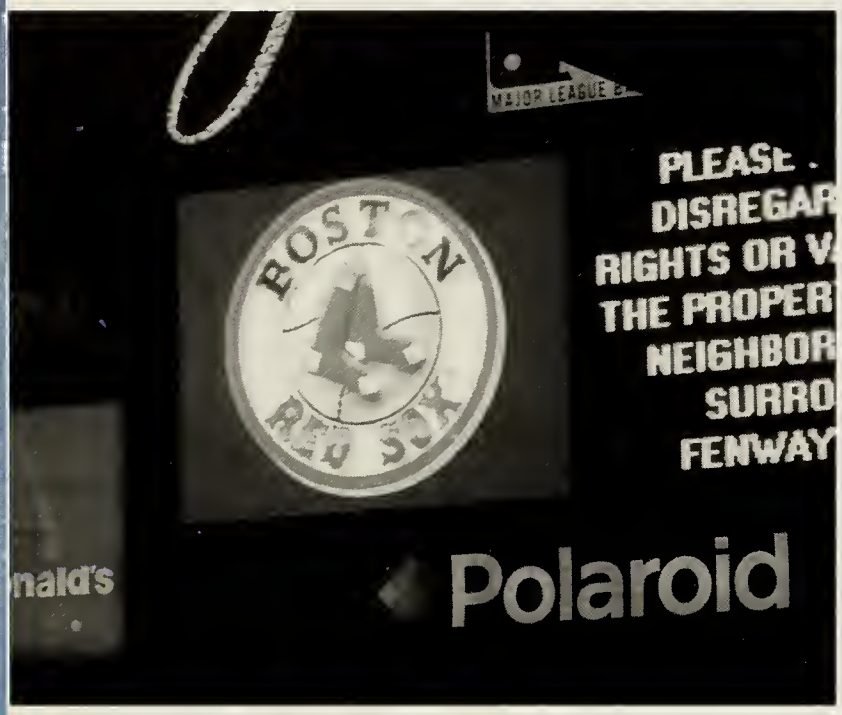
Name: Pascha Samantha Constance McTyson

Position: Secretary

Major: Liberal Arts (Sociology/Psychology concentrations)
Other Involvements at UML: UML Marching Band, Activities Commission, Fox Hall Council, Leadership Advisory Council, Student Government Association
Favorite Color: Red
Favorite Ice Cream Flavor: Mint Patty
Memorable UML Moment: Tripping, Falling and Rolling down the Lovejoy Lot in 1996. (Yes the band used to practice in the Lovejoy Lot)
Favorite Class at UML: Global Society with Prof. Egan
If you could meet anyone, from any time, who would it be?: Um Hello, Justin Timberlake or any member of Nsync for that matter!
Thank you's and shout-out's: Thanks you to my mom, cause she is my mom. Thanks to Brenda and Mary for showing me how things get done. Thanks to my girl Candra for crackin' me up all the time(We are from the Bronx, not of the Bronx). Whoomp, whoomp whap and a whooo HAHA and 7 and 8!

Shout outs to my fellow class officers Rob, Meagan and Brian, I know I got on your nerves sometimes but I have lots of love for you all. Thanks for being a part of my best year at UML.

No, it wasn't game 7 of the American League Championship Series, but it was the most anticipated event of senior week. On May 19th, members of the senior class had the opportunity to watch our Boston Red Sox take on the New York Yankees for the first time in the young baseball season.



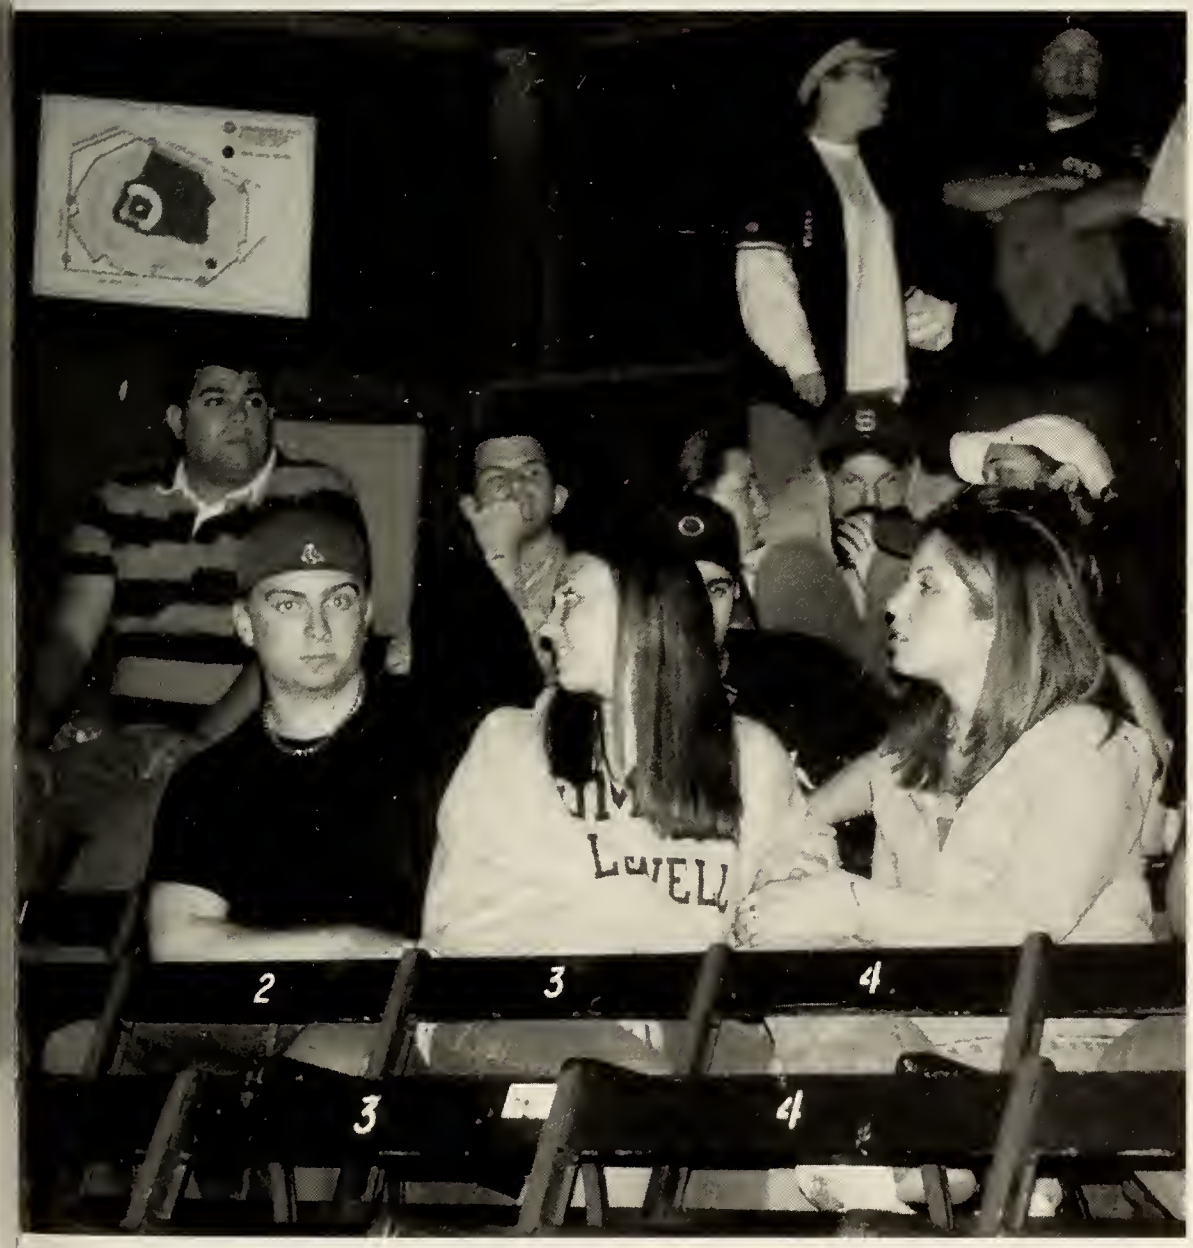
Red Sox

Quiet Revolution

Only 200 tickets were available for the game so seniors lined up early at the Student Information Centers on campus to buy tickets. The ending result... the quickest sell out in Student Activities history. All tickets for the game sold out in a matter of minutes.

Seniors and their guests who were lucky enough to get tickets made full use of them. Some students went into Boston early to take in the atmosphere of the city while others packed onto buses to make the trip down I-93.

Seniors enjoyed every aspect of Fenway. They enjoyed eating cracker jacks, fenway franks, and freshly roasted peanuts. They enjoyed watching Manny, and Nomar go to work all while doing the "Fenway Salute" to cover their eyes from the sun.



The only thing seniors didn't get to enjoy was a Red Sox win. Thanks to a Raul Mondesi based loaded triple in the first inning, the Yankees won 7 to 3.

Odyssey Cruise

The Class of 2003 and guests were looking classy as we loaded buses to cruise the Boston Harbor on the Odyssey. Traffic, chilly weather and rain could not stop us from dancing the night away to the live band or DJ on the lower deck. As we boarded the ship we were greeted by the captain and a gracious staff, as we cruised great company, delicious food and a variety of music made for an unforgettable evening.

Senior Week

Senior week 2003 was jam packed with events and give-aways. Held the week after finals, May 19-22, seniors were able to spend their last days as undergrads kicking back and having a good time. The week began with and awesome Yankees vs. Red Sox game at Fenway Park, followed by a little old fashioned fun at Medieval Manor, a rainy yet still fantastic cruise on the Odyssey and an in door BBQ and give away wind-down at the Rec Center, seniors won gift certificates and lots of UML memorabilia. The class of 2003 definitely ended their career at UML on a high note.

Seniors at Fenway

This year's most coveted prize during senior week was a ticket to a Red Sox & Yankees game at Fenway Park. Hundreds of seniors waited in line, but only a lucky few ended up with a ticket. Fortunately, I was one of the lucky ones and so were many of my friends. On game day, after pre-gaming at the Cask and Flagon for a while, my friends and I took our seats at the back of Grandstand 5. The seats weren't the greatest, but it didn't matter because it was such a rush to be able to see these two great rival teams playing each other. Emotions ran high the whole nine innings, and every Sox fan had soaring hopes that they'd pull it off. But in the end, evil prevailed over good and the Yankees won. Despite the loss, it was an event I'll always remember, not just for the game but for all the wonderful people I got to experience it with. ~Jessica Shepard

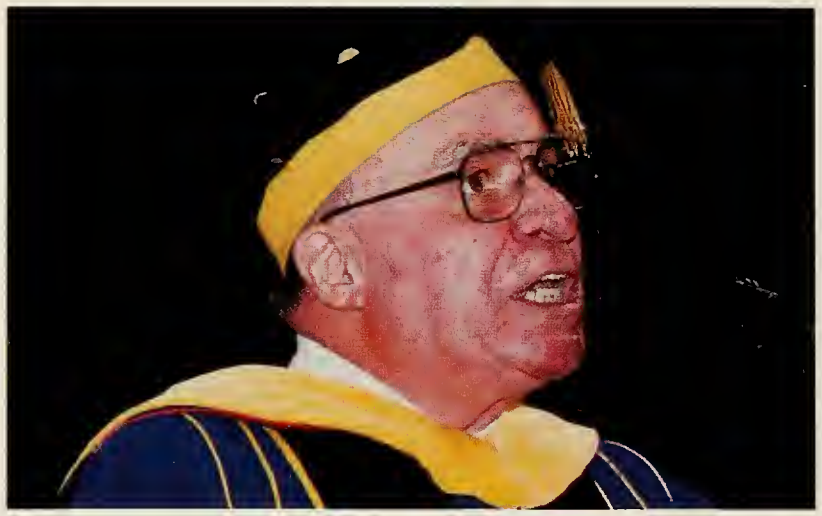
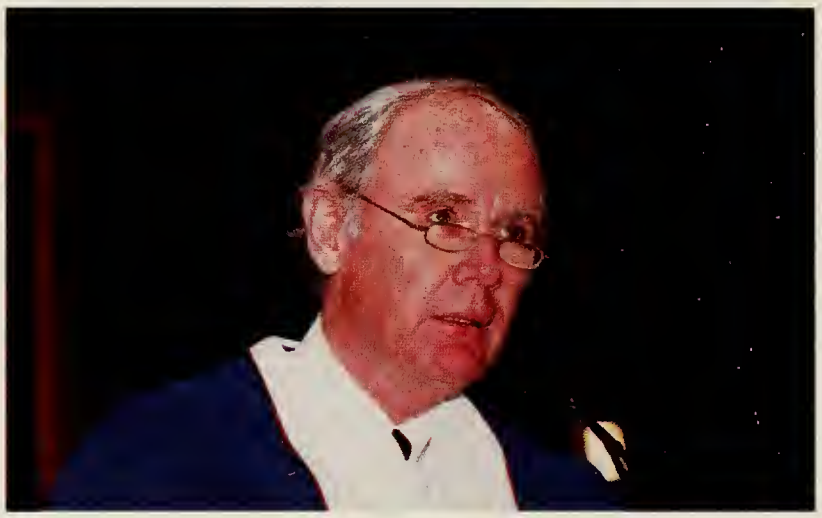
Commencement

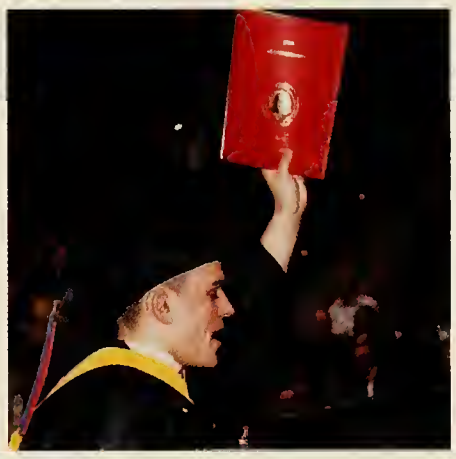
Commencement exercises, held at a full capacity Tsongas Arena, for the graduating class of 2003 took place on a rainy June 1st. The ceremony began in traditional fashion with bagpipe players leading the prestigious processional down the center aisle to the stage. Multiple colors were seen on the hoods of members of the processional, representing the various colleges and majors that make up the University, reminded the audience of how wonderfully diverse UMass Lowell is. Once all the members of the procession were seated, the high sheriff, James DiPaola, of Middlesex County called to order the assemblage of graduates, faculty, administrators, special guests, friends and family. Leah Campbell sang the National Anthem, followed by the class president Rob Velella's short speech congratulating his fellow graduates, urging them to always remember their alma mater, and emphatically stressing the most important aspect of the day: "we made it." Next came the awards portion of the ceremony where several graduates received Chancellor's Medals, and other awards such as Outstanding Academic Awards, Distinguished University and Community Service Awards.

Honorary Degrees were given to Margaret Becklake (professor emeritus at McGill University in Montreal), William O'Shea (vice president of marketing for Lucent Technologies and president of Bell Labs), James Carroll (a distinguished novelist and columnist for the Boston Globe and also the Commencement speaker), and the University's first-ever posthumous honorary degree to John Ogonowski ('72, a Dracut native and the captain of the American Airlines flight 11, which crashed into the first World Trade Center tower on September 11, 2001). Chancellor William Hogan conferred all 1,500 bachelor's, master's and doctorate degrees.





Plan to be spontaneous tomorrow.



Human beings are the only creatures on earth that allow thier children to come back home.

As the recessional began, the class of 2003 left the Tsongas Arena with a sense of great accomplishment for all they had achieved during their years at UMass Lowell. Commencement is an official graduation tradition which finalizes our time at UMass Lowell and provides us with due recognition of all our hard work, and this year's ceremony fulfilled its mission.

Wherever the graduates of UMass Lowell's Class of 2003 find themselves, the Sojourn staff wishes them all the best of luck.

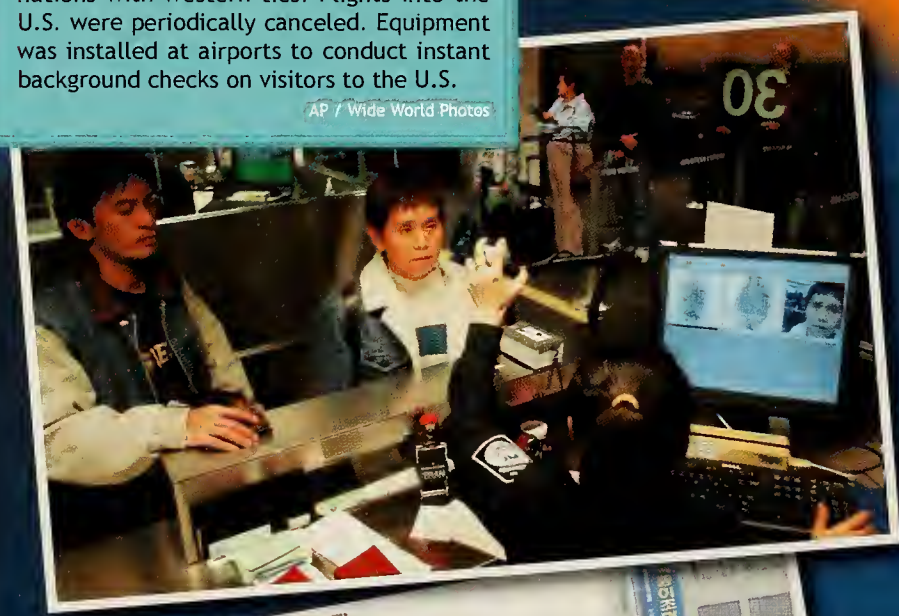
National/International News

Terrorism was a constant threat worldwide. Bombings occurred in several Muslim nations with western ties. Flights into the U.S. were periodically canceled. Equipment was installed at airports to conduct instant background checks on visitors to the U.S.

AP / Wide World Photos



Plans are in place for new construction on the site of the World Trade Center, which was destroyed on 9/11. If built, the Freedom Tower will reach 1,776 feet and become the tallest building in the world.

AP / Wide World Photos

Concerns remained about the development of nuclear weapons by Iran and North Korea. However, Libya agreed to dismantle its nuclear program.

AP / Wide World Photos

In January, a dangerous cold spell gripped the Northeast. The high demand for electricity led utility companies to warn residents of possible rolling blackouts.

AP / Wide World Photos

A European heat wave killed more than 14,000 people in late summer. As illness and deaths increased, a crisis developed at French hospitals and funeral homes. French citizens were angered by the slow government response.

AP / Wide World Photos

We found him! After eight months of searching, soldiers of the U.S. Army's 4th Infantry Division captured Saddam Hussein, former Iraqi dictator. Meanwhile, fighting continued between insurgents and coalition forces as it had since the fall of Iraq in April 2003.

AP / Wide World Photos

A late December earthquake killed at least 25,000 people in Bam, Iran. Aid teams from 16 countries went to help, including volunteers from the U.S., which was not on friendly terms with Iran.

AP / Wide World Photos

A blackout Aug. 14 left people from Maine to Michigan in the dark. People were trapped in elevators and on subways and traffic snarled, yet this hotel clerk continued to work.

AP / Wide World Photos

The flu season arrived earlier and stronger than usual, leading to packed emergency rooms, closed schools and the deaths of some children.

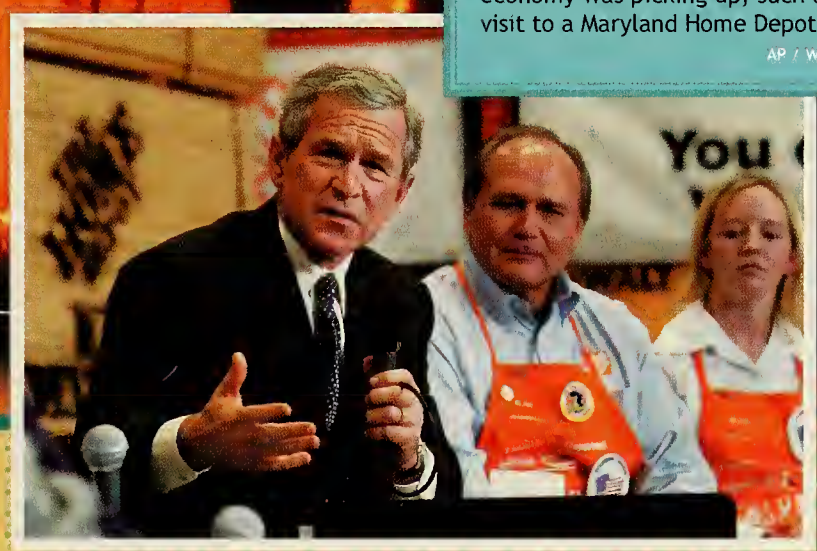
Nations made preparations in case the virus SARS (Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome) decided to return this winter. SARS, a flu-like illness, began in early 2003 in Asia, where many people wear face masks for protection.

AP / Wide World Photos

An improving economy in late 2003 sparked hope for the nearly nine million unemployed Americans. President George W. Bush continued to offer reassurance that the economy was picking up, such as during his visit to a Maryland Home Depot store.

AP / Wide World Photos



More than 20 people died, at least 1,100 people lost their homes and thousands were evacuated as California wildfires roared from the Simi Valley south to San Diego in the fall. Schools closed and airports were shut down.

AP / Wide World Photos

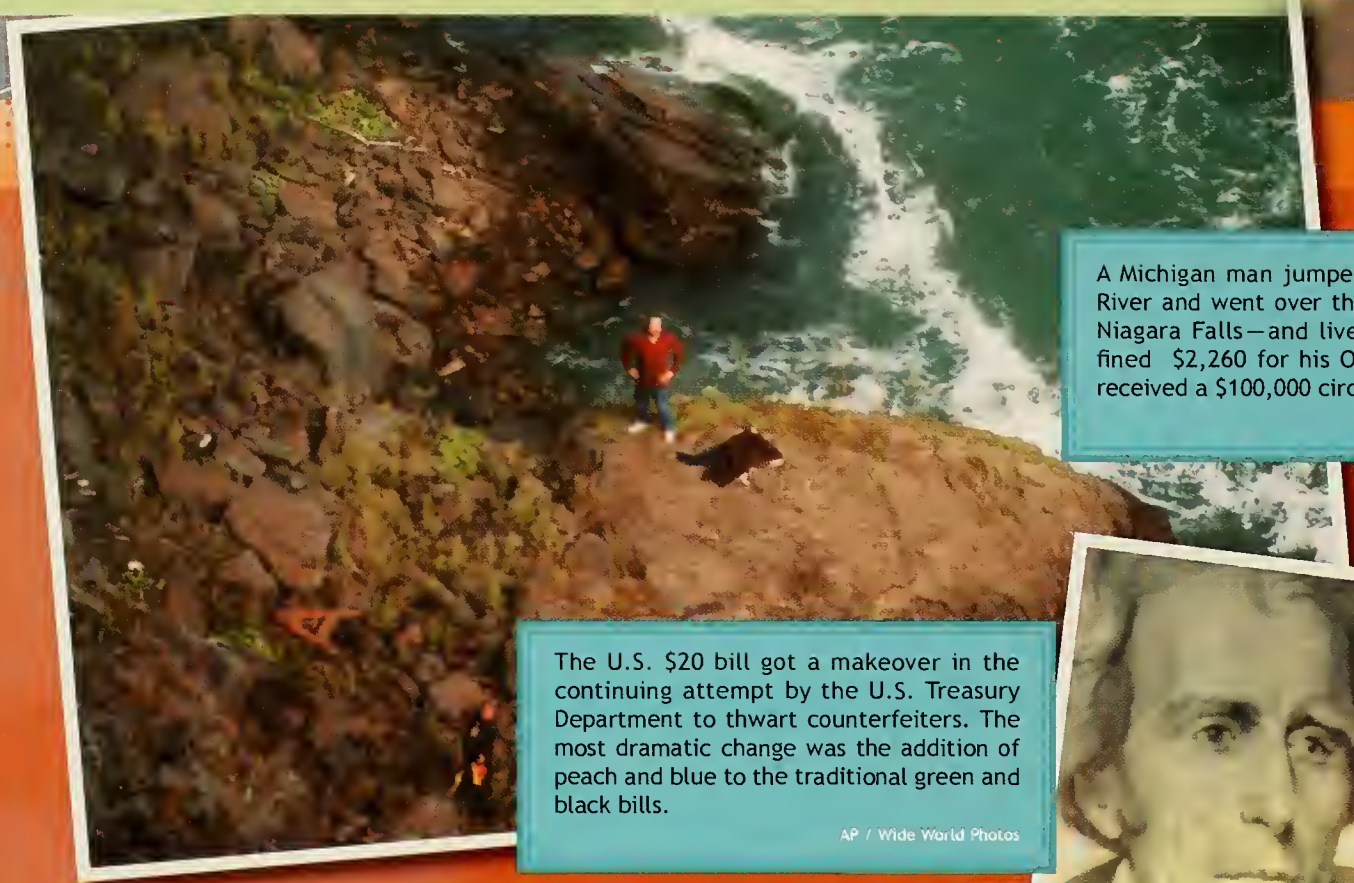
Signs of the Times

Taking a cue from many states, President George W. Bush signed into law a federal "do not call" list. People can request to be on the list and avoid calls from many telemarketers.

Get your rest before you get behind the wheel in New Jersey. The state has become the first to have a law against drowsy driving. Under the law, a driver who causes a fatal crash can be charged with vehicular homicide if there is evidence the driver was sleepy.

A homesick man thought it would be cheaper to fly himself home as cargo, but officials said he paid about the same as a first-class ticket. Charles McKinley shipped himself in a crate from New York to his parents' home in Dallas in a 15-hour journey that had officials concerned about the lack of security.

National/International News



A Michigan man jumped into the Niagara River and went over the Canadian side of Niagara Falls—and lived. Kirk Jones was fined $2,260 for his October plunge but received a $100,000 circus contract.

AP / Wide World Photos

The U.S. $20 bill got a makeover in the continuing attempt by the U.S. Treasury Department to thwart counterfeiters. The most dramatic change was the addition of peach and blue to the traditional green and black bills.

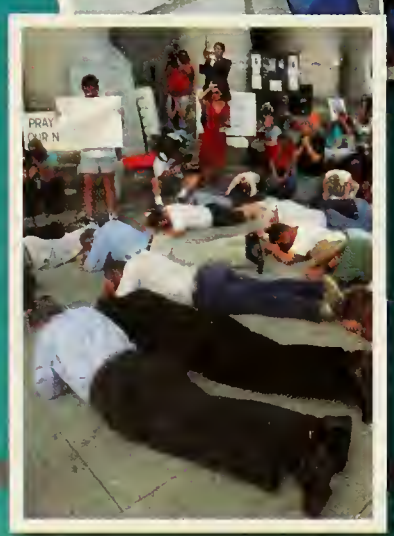
AP / Wide World Photos

Ekaterina Dmitriev married Russian cosmonaut Yuri Malenchenko while she stood at the Johnson Space Center in Houston and he was aboard the International Space Station. A life-size cutout stood in for the groom on the ground.

AP / Wide World Photos

The U.S. government insisted our beef supply was safe, despite the first case of mad cow disease reported in Washington state. Several nations banned U.S. beef imports.

AP / Wide World Photos



Alabama Chief Justice Roy Moore was removed from the bench in November for refusing a federal judge's order to remove the Ten Commandments from the Alabama Supreme Court building. Protesters prayed at the site.

AP / Wide World Photos

Trends

Flash mobs were a phenomenon that developed from cell phone text messaging. With one text message, you could tell everyone you know to meet at the same place at the same time—say, 2 p.m. Saturday on Main Street—and do something attention-getting—like a Tarzan yell for 30 seconds—then leave.

Style trends included monogrammed clothing; chandelier earrings; and trucker hats, like those worn by actor Ashton Kutcher; and hoodies.

Some slang words gained status. McJob—a low-paying job requiring little skill—entered the newest Merriam-Webster Collegiate Dictionary, angering McDonald's officials. The newest Oxford Dictionary of English included muggle, bootylicious, boy bands and girl bands.

One phone number for life? You can keep your cell phone number when changing companies, and make your home and cell number the same. Camera phones also were popular, but some countries banned them over invasion of privacy concerns.

Soda wars bubbled up in schools amid complaints that soft drinks are unhealthy for children. Some districts removed pop machines while others reduced the hours of availability. The decision about what to do was not easy, as some districts needed the revenue from the machines.

Studies showed that smoking among high school students had dropped and remained about the same for middle school students. However, tanning beds remain popular with teens despite the risk of skin cancer.

So what is pizza? The U.S. Department of Agriculture says pizza does not need crust, sauce or cheese to be labeled as pizza for sale in grocery stores. USDA also said "pizza with meat" products only have to have 2 to 3 percent meat instead of 12 to 15 percent.
